Cremation Process

Oregon Chapter 97 ORS 97.010 Cremation means the reduction of a body of a deceased person to cremated remains in a crematory. Crematory means a structure containing a retort for the reduction of bodies of deceased persons to cremated remains. More information about cremation can be gathered from the Cremation Association of North American or the Oregon State Cemetery and Mortuary Board.

Cremation is performed to prepare the deceased for memorialization and it is carried out by placing the deceased in a combustible casket or alternative container and then placing the casket or alternative container into the cremation chamber, or retort, where they are subjected to intense heat and flame. During the cremation process, it may be necessary to open the cremation chamber and reposition the deceased in order to facilitate a complete and thorough cremation. Through the use of a suitable fuel, incineration of the container and its contents is accomplished by raising the temperature substantially (extreme temperature) and all substances are consumed or driven off, except bone fragments (calcium compounds) and metal (including dental gold and silver and other non-human materials) as temperature is not sufficient to consume them. Due to the nature of the cremation process, any personal possessions or valuable materials such as dental gold and silver, or jewelry (as well as any body prostheses or dental bridgework) that are left with the decedent and not removed from the casket or container prior to cremation may be destroyed and become non-recoverable. If not destroyed, the crematory, is authorized to dispose of such material at its sole discretion. The Authorizing Agent understands the arrangements must be made with the Funeral Home to remove any such possessions or valuables prior to the time that the Decedent is transported to the Crematory.

Following a cooling period, the cremated remains, which will normally weigh several pounds in the case of an average-size adult, are then swept or raked from the cremation chamber. The Crematory makes a reasonable effort to remove all of the cremated remains from the cremation chamber, but it is impossible to remove all of them, as some dust and other residue from the process are always left behind. In addition, while every reasonable effort will be made to avoid commingling, inadvertent or incidental commingling of minute particles of cremated remains from the residue of previous cremations is a possibility, and the Authorizing Agent understands and accepts this fact.

After the cremated remains are removed from the cremation chamber, all non-combustible materials (insofar as possible) such as dental bridgework, and materials from the casket or container, such as hinges, latches, nails, etc, will be separated and removed from the human bone fragment by visible or magnetic selection. The Crematory is authorized to dispose of these materials with similar materials from other cremations in a non-recoverable manner, so that only the human bone fragments will remain.

When the cremated remains are removed from the cremation chamber, the skeletal remains often contain recognizable bone fragments. Unless otherwise specified, after the bone fragments have been separated from the other material, they will be mechanically processed (pulverized), which includes crushing or grinding and incidental commingling of the remains with the residue from the processing of previously cremated remains, into granulated particles of unidentifiable dimensions, virtually unrecognizable as human remains, prior to placement into the designated container. After the cremated remains have been processed, they will be placed into a designated urn or container. If the urn or container is not large enough to house all the cremated remains. A second container will be used and kept with the primary urn.

I/We Authorizing Agent(s) have read and understand this disclosure concerning the Cremation Process.
